What's New in the 2023 K-12 Science Standards?

K-12 science educators are invited to explore the recently adopted North Carolina K-12 Science Standards. The North Carolina Department of Public Instruction will review the 2023 Science Standards and will compare them with the 2009 standards. Science and Engineering Practices will be examined along with a discussion around their impact on instruction and assessment. Participants also will learn about the resources that have been developed and are being developed to support teachers and science leaders.
