

Clarkson Campus Tours

90 minutes to include presentation and walking tour of the WFUSOM large animal campus. Located about 20 minutes from downtown Winston-Salem, tours are offered from April - October for school groups or summer camps for middle school through adult aged attendees.

The purpose of Clarkson Campus tours is to educate the public on why it is important to include animals in research, as well as to show the humane treatment they receive on our site. Therefore, we want to impact the thoughts on animal research by providing information from the perspective of the scientist, and veterinarians when we can, with an added benefit of interesting students in medical research pathways as a career.

Our tour touches on the following:

- Why animals are used in medical research
- Research oversight and regulation
- Overview of Clarkson Campus and facilities/resources for research
- Information on species represented on campus
- Environmental Enrichment and overall animal wellbeing
- Careers available in animal research
- Observation of species variations in behavior, housing, enrichment based on animal size and use
